Attempted Poisoning.

Attempted Poisoning.

When Mrs. M. L. Harris, of Cowardin Avenue, went to the well in the yard of Mr. P. B. Johnson, at the northwest corner of Fifteenth and McDonough Street, learly Jesterday morning, she discovered about a pound of Paris green and a quart of carboile acid in the bucket that was to be lowered into the well. The odor of the acid first attracted her attention after she had drawn a bucket of water. She called to Mr. Johnson and reported the discovery.

Chief of Police Lipscomb went to the scene and questioned Mr. Johnson. On several gates leading from the yard in which the well is located there were finger prints, showing the Paris green. No clue has been found to locate the person or persons who attempted the poisoning of at least six families, or the well is used by neighbors living adjoining Mr. Johnson. Those who get water from the well are Mrs. M. L. Harris, Mrs. Russell Harris, Mrs. William Davidson, Mrs. Goode, Mrs. Junius Williamson and Mrs. Johnson.

The City Democratic Committee met last night and made all arrangements for the selection of the judges for the different wards, and otherwise completed the work of getting ready for the primary. There was a large attendance of the members. Chairman R. L. French, who has done such efficient work for the committee and the party in the past, presided last night.

Following are the candidates from the city who have paid their assessments and who are to be voted for in the primary:

J. G. Saunders, City Sergeant; Charles J. G. Saunders, City Sergeant; Charles L. Page, Commonwealth's Attorney; George W. Blankenship, High Constable; H. E. Duval, clerk of the court; Samuel R. Oweh, Commissioner of Revenue; Joseph W. Bronaugh, Jr., City Treasurer, and Willis C. Pulliam and Robert S. Rives, for House of Delegates.

The following pledge will be on the ticket: "All persons participating in this primary shall thereby be considered as binding themselves to vote for the nominee or nominees of the Democratic party in the ensuing general election."

THE GREAT LAFAYETTE SEEN IN MANY ROLES

His Performance at Casino Last Night Pleased a Big Audience.

The Great Lafayette has been seen here before, upon which occasion he rivalled Ching Ling Foo, but never has he been seen in Richmond in such a variety of entertainment as he offered last night at the Casino.

ching Ling 1900, but never has he been seen in Richmond in such a variety of entertainment as he offered last night at the Casino.

Lafayette as an impersonator and quick-change artist is probably without an equal. It requires more than wiss and make-up for the work he does, for he portrays in movement and facial expression the characters he represents. All of those in which he appeared last night in the second part of the bill were travettes, but, nevertheless, there was the ability of the clever character actor beet dithem all. The second part of the programme is the best of the three.

The first portion of the programme was devoted to some of the tricks in initation of the Chinese magician, Ching Ling Foo. Lafayette did nearly overything that the Chinaman did. He produced from the folds of his robe two small specimens of alligator bait, and as the little "coons" toddied off the stage they caused a roar of laughter. A dog, a goose and a turkey were also produced, but these did not seem so much at home on the stage. Indeed, the turkey, after cranting its neck several times over the footing its, finally spread its wings and flew out into the audience, to the gobbler flew low, just grazing, heir least and allisted about ten rows from the front where he shared a soat with a liday until removed by an usher.

The performance concludes with a spectacular feature entitled "The Lion's Bride." In this is introduced what apparently is quite a feroclous African lies. The largette managed to change places with a manger that startled the audience, and when the cage flow was throw open and the supposed ilon sprang for ward, the ladles, remembering the trick has been done here before, but it is good.

FREIGHT RATES

Corporation Commission Undertakes a work Pleasing to Shippers.

HAVE UNIFORM CHARGES

All Virginia Roads May Have Same Rates and Classi-

The State Corporation Commission has issued a notice to the Atlantic Coast Line and other leading roads in the State, fixing a hearing for the 12th of Septem ber in the most important matter yet undertaken by that body, the result of which will be awaited by the people of the State with the deepest interest. In the paper sent out to be served on the railroads, they are notified that on the 11th of September, the commission will hear any objections they may have to a new uniform, freight classification for use in Virginia, accompanied by distance tables and rate sheets, prescribing the rates on numerous articles. The new proposed classification and distance sheets copies were served with the notice to the railroads.

A reporter yesterday requested Colonel John S. Harwood to give his views on the subject of the proposed new classification and rates, which he consented to do. Colonel Harwood has long been a prominent and active member in the Travelers' Protective Association, one of the largest commercial organizations in the country, and has been giving considerable htten-tio at otransportation matters. Colonel Harwood said that the metho Colonel Harwood said that the method of rate making was but little understood by the public at large and was difficult of explanation. The foundation of the making of rates was what was known among railroad men and shippers, as a classification, being an arrangement of the various classes of freight in groups or classes, the same freight rate applying to all articles in one class. In addition to this, some leading articles were taken out of the classification and special rates applied to them, known as commodity

Uniform Classification.

He said that there had been in use in Virginia for many years two such classi-fications, known as the "ofileial classific-cation," and the "southern classific-tion," these two classifications, themselves, being greatly modified by the rallroads so that it was exceedingly ------ rallroads so that it was exceedingly ——cult for a shipper, and oftentimes, for the agent of the railroad, to find out what the rate was on a given article of freight for a certain distance.

The action proposed by the commission, if put into effect, will have one uniform classification of freight, which must be observed by all the roads, and to which a shipper can turn, and, with the freight tariffs or sheets in his hand, would be able to ascertain easily, what the rate was on any given article. This uniform classification had been examined by Colonel Harwood, and he considered hy Colonel Harwood, and he considered the work to have been admirably done embracing, as if did, some seventy page of print.

In addition to the great usefulness of this uniform classification, the effect of it, taken together with the new rates, would be to lessen the rates on a great many leading articles of shipment, particularly upon many of the stapic necessities of life. The proposed classification and rates will be of great benefit to all the clites of the Commonwealth, and of no less and, perhaps, of greatte benefit to the people in the country, in shipping their produce.

Great Saving to Shippers.

Great Saving to Shippers.

Great Saving to Shippers.

Another matter to which Colonel Harwood called attention was to the rule contained in the classification, requiring that all small packages should be rated at their actual weight, with a minimum charge, allowed to the railroads, of 25 per cent for any single shipment. He explained that, as the matter now stands, the railroads consider no package as weighing less than one hundred pounds, so that, although it might weigh but twenty-five pounds, the shipper had to pay on a weight of one hundred pounds. This would evidently be a great saving to shippers of small parcels.

On the whole, in Colonel Harwood's opinian, the work done by the commission was, not only admirably done, but also, in the highest degree, commendable.

opinish, the work done by the commission was, not only admirably done, but also, in the highest degree, commendable. He said he did not believe that such a task had been undertaken and completed, under the circumstances existing in Virginia, by any railroad commission that had been created in any other State in the country. Colonel Harwood sa'd that, if the commission had done nothing else than have compiled this classification and rates, it would have justified its creation and all expanse connected with its existence. He said further that, doubtless the railroads would resist the putting into effect of this new system of rates and it might be, and it probably would be, two or three years before the question was finally settled.

DR. YOUNG ON THE SIGNS OF TIMES

HIS REFERENCE TO GRAFT

Some Christians Think World Beyond Redemption and Hold Aloof.

Dr. W. J. Young, pastor of Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, spoke on Sunday night on the "Heavenly and the Farthly Citzenship," taking for his text Fhil, 3:20, "Our Citizenship is in Heaven." lic said, in part, that texts like these are often spoken of as two other-worldly and not sufficiently practical. The world re sents the lives of those men who, refusing to enter into the conflicts and realities of life, hurry through to another world. The apostle, no more than the Master, desired to take men out of the world, but to give them such a point of view as would keep them true to the most exalted principles while busy with the most material concerns. He would have them see that there is a spiritual side to life, even to the factory, bank and store. He would have them turn their gaze more fully on those eternal laws of truth and rightesusness by which all things must ultimately be controlled, brasmuch as conduct is three-fourths of life. He would have them live more in the all things must ultimately be controlled, in smuch as conduct is three-fourtns of life. He would have them live more in the atmosphere of the ideal and to think of the real things about us as merely prophecies of the better.

There are two possible attitudes towards this world in its relation to the world to come. In the one case, the Christian looks upon this world as essetially and necessarily evil, its pleasures, its busiless, its politics are past redemption, at least in this age, and under present conditions. The noblest thing, therefore, he can do is to strive to get to heaven, to save his soul, having meanwhile as little to do with the wicked world as possible,

Less Selfish Attitude.

The other attitude rather seeks to bring the heavenly kingdom down to earth, to apply heavenly laws and heavenly ideals in the present world. There is nothing particularly noble, but, on the contrary, possibly something decidedly selfish, in the ambition to reach the heavenly world and the place of a toller in solvins the many problems looking to the establishment of Christ's kingdom, one might wellows a few problems looking to the establishment of Christ's kingdom, one might wellows a few problems looking to the establishment of Christ's kingdom, one might wellows a humble place in the world service, and ask the Father to delay His service, and ask the Father to delay His call to the land of rest. The dying Earl of Shaftesbury, when told he would soon be among the angelle hosts, expressing the regret that he must leave the poor and the erring, for whom he was folling, for a state of bilss indeed, it would seen that there could be no better preparation for the heavenly world than the constant for the heavenly world than the constant of the kernel, but world seen the first and the Alamana and Rozela days, Find and the place of a toller in solvins the many problems looking to the establishment of Christ's kingdom, one might well of the call of the call of the Research of the call of the call of the call of the call of the ca
